FOCC WEST LOTHIAN DAILY BLOG 2014

Monday 2nd June

Our Dynamic Earth and Holyrood Park

Setting off from the hall on a slightly overcast morning we headed off to Edinburgh and Dynamic Earth. What an absolutely fabulous visit. The children were treated to, quote from Luda, "a lesson much better that any classroom" from the start of time, right through the ice age, to space exploration. They were all enthralled by the visual effects and exhibits.

Perhaps the highlight was in the 3D theatre where they were trying to catch the eagle and the rhinoceros. With the loudest scream of the day when the scorpion struck out: and that was from the adults! On to the rain forest where they saw endangered species. The talk being translated by Tanya.

After lunch in the park, just a stroll up Arthurs Seat to stretch the legs and see Edinburgh laid out below and as far to the North as Fife. Once back in the hall just time for a bit of concert practice.

A fabulous but tiring day
